RULES

Books must not be kept from the Library more than two weeks, unless by permission of the Librarian.

Only one book may be taken at a time.

Notes or marks of any kind on either blank or printed pages of the books are forbidden.

To enable the Librarians to select acceptably, readers are requested to keep checked on their cards the numbers of several books desired.

Books will not be exchanged if they are asked for on the cards.

MARTHA T. WHEELER,

Librarian.

NOTE.—It has been the aim of the Committee to put into the Library only books of wholesome influence, but no attempt has been made to decide what is suitable Sunday reading. On this point there is necessarily much difference of judgment, and parents are expected to make their own rules.
